The Future of Footnotes

As most of you know Trish is moving back home to Texas at the end of February starting her new life with now husband, Ken. This is sad news but I have always known moving back home was always in Trish's future plans. I and everyone surrounding her wishes her the best in her new life & chapter! :)

Sigh...but what happens with Footnotes?

I have needed much time to really dig down deep to figure out what I was willing and wanting to do. I have thought about taking on the business full time, but realized that I'd have to step back from my true passion of teaching in order attend all the business' needs. I'm not ready to give that up yet because I love working with my students too much. I also thought about maybe finding a new partner in the business but being truly honest...I can't imagine running Footnotes without Trish or having someone fill her shoes! Those are BIG shoes to fill for such a tiny person! Her and I have been an amazing team. We have complimented each others strengths and weaknesses in the best of ways! And that in part, is why Footnotes has been so successful!

February 2018

The Future of Footnotes continues...

With that being said, finding another partner is out of question at this time.

With the support of Trish, we have decided that it is best to dissolve Footnotes at the end of February for the reasons previously mentioned and go out on an amazing high! This is not the end but just a new chapter, a new future, for both of us. We appreciate all of your support these past 5 years. We couldn't have been so successful without all of you believing in our dream! Thank you!

For these next two months we are going to have a ball with all of you and dance our little hearts out! Lets not be sad but lets celebrate all that has been and what will be!

We will see you on the dance floor, Ashleigh & Trish
